1 April 2005

It is my pleasure to present the 2004-05 Annual Report of the Centre for Security and Defence Studies, at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs, Carleton University. This past year has been one of great activity and transition at the Centre. We have undergone a change in leadership—appointing a new Director and Deputy Director—and welcomed a new Post-Doctoral Fellow and four new Faculty and Research Associates, adding even greater breadth to the Centre's current range of expertise. At the same time, CSDS continued to pursue a full and active program of teaching, research and outreach on Canadian and international security and defence issues.

Of particular note this year were two major international policy conferences sponsored by CSDS and its partners: "Defining the National Interest: New Directions for Canadian Foreign Policy" (in partnership with the Canadian Defence and Foreign Affairs Institute, the Dominion Institute, the Canada Institute of the Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars, and SDF-funded Centres at Laval and Queen's Universities), and "New Directions in Building Peace: The Integration of Diplomacy, Defence and Development" (in partnership with the Pearson Peacekeeping Centre). In addition, CSDS provided the Carleton and Ottawa-area security and defence community with more than a dozen public lectures and seminars, specialised workshops, roundtables, consultations and briefings. Also of note this year is the particularly strong research and publication output of Centre Associates: 12 books and monographs, 18 book chapters, 17 major scholarly journal articles, and 60 conference papers and presentations. CSDS also published five papers in its Working Paper series and assisted in the publication of the influential Canada Among Nations. For the next fiscal year, the Centre will continue to pursue its current program. In addition to continuing the Speaker Series and the Strategic Analysis Seminar Series, several major international conferences are planned.

In closing, let me express on behalf of our Associates our great appreciation for the continued support of the Security and Defence Forum at the Department of National Defence. SDF provides the bulk of the Centre's funding and its support is invaluable, affording NPSIA and Carleton the opportunity to provide teaching, research and outreach on Canadian and international security and defence issues in the national capital region.

Sincerely,

David Mendeloff
Director, Centre for Security and Defence Studies

Section 1 – Mission Statement

1.1	What is the Centre’s mission statement? The Centre for Security and Defence Studies (CSDS) at the Norman Paterson School of International Affairs (NPSIA) seeks to increase awareness and enrich understanding of international and Canadian security, foreign and defence policy issues. The Centre’s primary mission is to promote knowledge of, and creative and innovative solutions to, Canadian, hemispheric, and global security challenges through an active program of teaching, research, and outreach to the academic and policy communities and the general public.
1.2	What is the relationship between the mission statement and the activities of the SDF centre? To fulfil its mandate, CSDS engages in three main activities: 1) Education. CSDS promotes interdisciplinary graduate and undergraduate education at NPSIA and other Carleton departments in the fields of conflict analysis, international conflict management and resolution, defence and security studies, peacekeeping and peacebuilding, intelligence studies, and Canadian foreign policy. CSDS provides support for security and defence-related course instruction, course design, teaching innovation, and student thesis supervision. 2) Research. CSDS provides support for advanced interdisciplinary research and publication on security and defence-related issues by NPSIA and Carleton faculty, graduate students and outside specialists. This includes a post-doctoral fellows program; a visiting senior research fellows program; pre-doctoral fellows program; graduate research assistantships; conference participation support for faculty and students; support for the NPSIA Resource Centre, which affords access to specialised publications that meet the research and teaching requirements of our students and faculty; and a working paper series, which provides a publishing venue for Centre Associates, students and the broader NPSIA and Carleton community. Cont...

	3) Outreach. CSDS undertakes outreach activities targeting the Carleton University and broader Ottawa-area security and defence community, Government of Canada departments and agencies, Ottawa-area high schools and colleges, national and international professional and scholarly associations, non-governmental organisations, and the general public. Activities include consultations, specialised briefings, government training programs, academic and policy conferences, specialised workshops, publications, interviews with electronic and print media, and public lectures and seminars on security and defence-related issues.
1.3	How do the activities you've undertaken in the current fiscal year match what you undertook to do in your funding proposal? All elements of our funding proposal were implemented during the past year. In terms of education, CSDS supported the teaching of 26 graduate and undergraduate courses with substantive security and defence content, and CSDS faculty and research associates supervised 51 graduate theses. The Centre also supported the professional training of policymakers and students by hosting in Ottawa a major foreign policy crisis simulation exercise created by the SDF-funded Centre for Foreign Policy Studies at Dalhousie University. In addition, CSDS organised a field trip for graduate students to the Peace Support Training Centre in Kingston, Ontario to observe a live training exercise. And the Centre continued to support the hugely successful annual Carleton Model NATO Conference, which attracts nearly 200 university students from across Canada. In the area of research, CSDS appointed a new Post-Doctoral Fellow, Dr. Christopher Ankersen; renewed the appointment of Visiting Senior Research Fellow, Mr. Anthony Campbell (former Executive Director of the Intelligence Assessment Secretariat at the Privy Council Office); appointed two new Faculty Associates, Dr. Jean Daudelin (NPSIA) and Dr. Brian Schmidt (Political Science); two new Research Associates, Dr. Sarah Jane Meharg (Pearson Peacekeeping Centre and Royal Military College) and Dr. Natalie Mychajlyszyn (NPSIA); and three Pre-Doctoral Fellows, Philippe Lagasse, Rachel Heide and Trista Grant (Western). The Centre also employed two Research Assistants, Thomas Triantafillou and Aleisha Arnusch, both NPSIA M.A. students. Overall, the research efforts of CSDS Associates and graduate students led to the publication of 12 books and monographs, 18 book chapters, 17 major scholarly journal articles, and 60 conference papers and presentations. Cont...

In the area of outreach, CSDS supported an active program of conferences, workshops seminars and lectures, and publication of working papers. CSDS again organised the third annual Canadian Foreign Policy Conference, "Defining the National Interest: New Directions for Canadian Foreign Policy," in partnership with the Canadian Defence and Foreign Affairs Institute (CDFAI), the Dominion Institute, the Canada Institute of the Woodrow Wilson Center for Scholars, and SDF-funded Centres at Laval and Queen's Universities. The Centre also organised an all-day workshop as a follow-up to the highly successful international conference held in 2003, "Intervention: Then What? Implications for Global Justice, Development And Security," in partnership with Carleton's Centre on Values and Ethics (COVE) and the Pearson Peacekeeping Centre (PPC). And also in partnership with the PPC, CSDS sponsored a major international policy conference, "New Directions in Building Peace: The Integration of Diplomacy, Defence and Development."

In addition, CSDS organised 11 major lectures by distinguished speakers from the military, foreign policy, and academic communities, as well as roundtables on breaking news events. For example, in February 2005, the Centre hosted a roundtable on the regional and international security implications of the "Orange Revolution" in Ukraine, which attracted participants from Foreign Affairs, the Ukrainian Embassy in Ottawa, the University of Ottawa Chair in Ukrainian Studies, and Columbia University.

CSDS continued to offer the popular Strategic Analysis Seminar Series, which is targeted primarily at officials at DND, Foreign Affairs, and the Privy Council Office. This year's Series focused on ongoing intelligence reviews and reforms in the US, UK and Canada and hosted a number of distinguished international and Canadian speakers on the topic.

The CSDS publishing program issued five papers in the Working Paper series, all of which are publicly available for download on the Centre's website. The Centre also assisted in the publication of the annual volume of Canada Among Nations.

The Centre continued to support and organise the annual World Issues Conference for High School students in the Ottawa-Carleton region. The English language conference attracted an enrolment of nearly 650 students. The French-language conference attracted nearly 350 students from Francophone High Schools in Ottawa and Pembroke.

	Finally, the Centre continued to provide specialised briefings at the request of DND and Foreign Affairs Canada. These included briefings with a visiting delegation of Japanese foreign policy journalists and editorial writers and the Danish military attaché in North America.
1.4	What activities are planned for next year? How do they match what you undertook to do in your funding proposal? The Centre will continue its active program of education, research and outreach activities as outlined in our funding proposal. In addition to continuing the Speaker Series and the Strategic Analysis Seminar Series, several conferences are planned: A major international conference will be held in June 2005 on Collective Security and UN reform, in partnership with the Royal Institute of International Relations in Brussels, Belgium. Another major international conference is being planned for February 2005 on the topic of Insurgency and Counterinsurgency, which will involve military, policy, and academic participants from North America, Europe and the Middle East. In addition a specialised all-day workshop on the future of Afghanistan is currently being planned for September 2005 in partnership with the SDF-funded Research Group in International Security at McGill University and Université de Montréal.

Section 2 – Performance Indicators

Goal #1: Satisfactory capacity of Canadian academic community to contribute to the public policy debates and public education on defence and security issues

Academic Research Population (i.e. core group affiliated with the centre/chair) focused on security and defence issues with SDF centres

2.1	What is the number of faculty attached to the centre involved in research?	11	10
